Hundreds Are Destroyed By French Units

War Ministry Spokesman Reports Enemy Had Made Slight Advances On West, East Flanks

PARIS, June 6.—The Germans, throwing at least 2,000 tanks into the battle of the Somme, were reported by the French war ministry spokesman tonight to have made a "slight advance."

French forces are retreating tonight both on the west and on the east flanks of the Somme front.

Some of the German tanks were estimated to have driven as much as 7½ miles into the French lines, attacking in swarms of 200 and 300 and engaging French men and machines in gigantic battles.

However several hundred of these tanks were declared by the war office spokesman to have been destroyed by French tanks, planes and by the infantry support points which are staggered through General Maxime Weygand's tangle of new fortifications on the Somme front.

The French left, or west, flank was withdrawing from the Somme along the English Channel coast toward the Breisle river, roughly 17 miles south of Abbeville.

The French right (east) flank was falling back from the Ailette river south toward the Aisne river.

Nazi Drive Concentrated In Several Sectors

The German drive was concentrated in the sectors south of Abbeville, Amiens and Peronne, east of the Oise valley and in the Ailette sector.

Violent air battles went on, the French reporting they had shot down 36 German planes and wrecked perhaps seven more. German troop concentrations were bombed and machine-gunned both on the Somme-Aisne front and on the Rhine.

PARIS, June 6.—French "75's" and anti-tank guns caught hard-driving German tanks in a tangle of fire on the Somme front in a battle seven miles in depth.

Other German tanks, pushing recklessly as far as they could go, fought through the battlefield and into the open only to be cut off from their support.

Nests of French machine-gunners and pursuit planes were reported to have successfully held back the main German forces, preventing motorcycle and truck-carried infantry from following up the tank spearheads.

Tank Traps Permit Destruction At Will

The main German armies struck both directly at Paris, 70 miles away, and in the west toward Rouen.

The new French tactics for meeting a blitzkrieg were said to have entangled German tanks in forward zones, permitting their destruction at will.

Germany's mobile fortresses, pushing far ahead of the main battlefront and miles from the fueling bases, were said in military advices to have found the roads back barred by specially trained and equipped detachments which ringed them under full fire—especially from French 75's—till they were crumpled masses of iron and steel.

Penetration To Final Annihilation

The "quagmire" defence—some call it a "flypaper" defence—requires no suicidal attacks by outpost to oppose the heavy tread of the blasting tanks, but rather a yielding which permits penetration of the defence zone to final annihilation.

Frenchmen declare that the first results of the second day of the "Battle for Paris" in which 2,000,000 men are engaged, prove the efficacy of the "quagmire" defence.

Paris observers declare the Nazi "panzer" divisions—troops on wheels or caterpillar treads—have suffered heavy losses.

French Soldiers Blow Kisses At Queen Elizabeth

LONDON, June 6.—French soldiers blew kisses after the Queen Elizabeth today when she visited a hospital where several hundred Tommy and police, shattered in the fury of Flanders, are now receiving treatment.

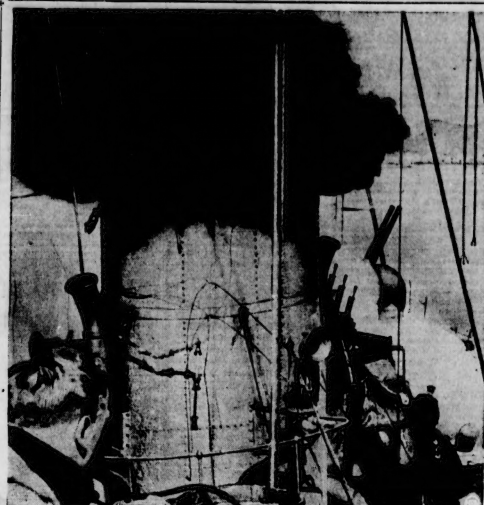

Her Majesty stopped beside beds after bed for a chat and when a nurse said she was ill, she went to the bedside and kissed her on the forehead.

In one ward a Tommy with wounds so ugly that he was screened off from the others, the Queen entered the cubicle and asked for a particular long talk.

Although this photo was taken under a heavy attack by dive bombers on a British destroyer and shows a direct hit on the ship, she is still pressing on to the beach at Dunkerque to bring off troops of the B.E.F. The anti-aircraft batteries were still in action, and the black gun the destroyer sent aloft clouds of dense black smoke to screen the movements of their ship. ITALY WIDENS PREPARATIONS FOR WAR ENTRY

ROME, June 6.—Orders were quietly circulated tonight to men of all branches of the Fascist party in Rome to be ready to don uniforms at any time for a suddenly called mass meeting at which Premier Mussolini would announce that Italy was at war.

At the same time it was reported that a large number of Italian reservists in Turkey have returned to Italy.

Italian authorities are notifying foreign governments that coastal waters are being mined, an authoritative source reported.

ADAPTED SUPPLIES. In another sector of Italian war preparations, the German minister of agriculture, Walter Durr, came to confer with Italian authorities who seek to ensure adequate supplies for Italy.

It is rumored that Rittore Muli, secretary of the Fascist Party, has been ordered to lead a column of volunteers to the front, a source said.

R. A. F. Retaliates in Wake of Nazi Raids On Coast of England

German Supply Bases, Troop Concentrations Attacked—High Explosive, Fire Bombs Dropped On Britain

LONDON, June 6.—Britain's airmen, raiding from the battle zone in France to the industrially-important Ruhr valley in western Germany, have attacked enemy supply bases, troop concentrations and lines of communications leading to the Somme river battlefield in renewed efforts to help the French halt the German drive on Paris.

While British airmen with rifles and guns at hand stood constant watch at home against any attempted invasion, the air ministry announced that medium and heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force "attacked enemy troop concentrations, and harassed enemy movements behind the fighting front."

Other heavy bombers, the ministry added, "struck at junctions and marshalling yards west of the Somme, and attacked military objectives in Germany."

SIX PLANES BAGGED. The raiding forays took a toll of enemy planes and more of Canada's aid, while one British plane was shot down and two are missing.

R.A.F. scored direct hits on oil tanks captured by the Germans at Ghent, the ministry announced. The airmen were reported to have flown low and machine-gunned targets in Ghent, which was illuminated by flames from the burning tanks.

While the R.A.F. fought to help the French meet the German attack, the ministry said, British airmen have made some progress at establishing a link in the Aisne-Somme battle, but added that no advance could be expected until the start of the French defence position.

It was said the Germans are tapping everywhere to find a soft spot in the war zone. The order was passed that the British airmen should be on the alert for any possible German advance.

WARTIME MEASURE. This will apply to women and families of officers and men of the Canadian navy, army and air force in the war zone. The order was passed that the British airmen should be on the alert for any possible German advance.

Now or Never

Here Goering fulfilled the expectations of military commentators by starting a furious offensive against the French army along the Somme-Sedan front, instead of launching an aerial blitzkrieg upon England from the newly-won Channel ports. But he started it sooner than they said it would be possible to re-group the invading divisions for an attack on the southern front. What obviously happened is that fresh German troops of all classes were sent up for this new offensive, leaving the badly mauled first divisions to reorganize behind the lines.

The prodigality with which men and equipment are being thrown into the campaign bespeaks a clear recognition at Berlin that if the Allies cannot be knocked out this summer the war will be lost.

The Call for Ambulances

The appeal of the Red Cross for 50 ambulances, asked for by the British Red Cross, has already brought response from many points in the required number but will without doubt be forthcoming in little time. The people of every city in the Dominion will, and should, want to provide one of these life-saving vehicles.

The cost of an ambulance is said to be little more than $2,000. These cars can be bought immediately and sent overseas without delay. They do not have to be built to order. Their purchase by municipal funds or public subscription will not interfere in any way with the filling of Government orders, and every one sent across will be a net addition to the number available as and where needed. Should the number asked for be doubled, there is only too strong probability that there will be none too many.

Edmonton people will welcome an opportunity to contribute to so urgent a cause. They have never failed to do their bit in a matter of the kind.

Britain at Bay

It was a heart-rending statement Prime Minister Churchill had to make to the British House of Commons on the "colossal military disaster" that befell the Allied arms in Flanders. And he did not soften the impact in the telling. A defeat had been sustained, immense stores of equipment and munitions had been lost, the enemy was in complete possession of the Channel ports and of vast Belgian and French mining and industrial areas. The only redeeming feature in the picture was that the Allied army had been saved by a "miracle of evacuation"; but "wars are not won by evacuations".

In consequence, Britain was faced by invasion, immediately and ferociously. Its people might have to fight for their lives, their homes and their liberties in the streets of their cities, the fields and hills of their countryside. It must be a battle to the death for them, whether on their own soil or elsewhere. There could be no surrender.

It not for a hundred years has Britain been so seriously threatened with invasion, never in the long roll of its history have its people heard a sterner call to arms. Seldom has the head of a government had to tell his countrymen they stood in such dire peril. None ever told it in plainer language.

It was precisely the kind of speech a Churchill could be expected to make, and the kind Britishers would want him to make in the circumstances. For the strength of Britain is that something in the British character which dares to face facts and hates subterfuge. To that innate love of realism they challenge who strike home. The people of Britain know now their backs are to the wall. If their islands are invaded their assailants will find them terrible adversaries.

Good-Bye Grads

The Grads have played their last game—and won it. They pass from the stage undefeated champions of the world.

To Edmonton people, and thousands of enthusiastic supporters in the surrounding country, it will seem that a prized local institution has vanished, for a quarter of a century they have been cheering the Grads to victory. We cannot hope to see their like again.

To the record of this wonder team

there is no parallel in the world of sport. It is fitting that it end in the full tide of achievement, with prestige undiminished, and every prospect that the unmatched record of success could be still further lengthened. The Grads quit unbeaten and unbeatable.

The finest tradition the Grads have established is that they never threw a game. They always played to win. They gave the fans always value for their money. There have been times without number when the box receipts would have gone up, and financial difficulties been solved, if a visiting team had been allowed to win. But that never happened. When the Grads lost it was because they were outplayed. They leave a record as clean as it is long.

The Grads were more than an Edmonton basketball team. They were the leaders in making this a popular competitive sport for every Canadian. More than any other organization they taught the public on both sides of the line that basketball could be made a game worth watching. In every important centre in Canada, and in many in the United States, there will be regret that this pioneer team is passing out of existence.

Relatives in Germany, writing to friends in Canada, express fears these people may be mistreated. The fears are of course unfounded. Canadians aren't Nazis.

Berlin denies that the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge was bombed. It would be pleasant to learn that for once the official spokesman there has told the truth, if there were any way of knowing whether he has or not.

New Zealand has a law permitting military conscription to be brought into effect. But it is officially announced the law will not be applied unless voluntary enlistment fails to produce the number of men required. Great numbers of men being urged recently need not in the last war, it is unlikely that situation will arise.

One member proposed in parliament that Canada give 5,000,000 bushels of wheat to France and Britain to help feed war refugees. The only objection is that the amount should be more. Both countries, but France more than Britain, are taking care of vast and increasing numbers of war-displaced people. Other countries who have been driven from their homes. Canada might well help to ease this strain on financial resources which are already strained beyond anything Canadians have ever known.

On The Record

THE BALANCE SHEET OF HISTORY

I am not among those who think that the United States is threatened with an imminent invasion either from Mars or from the Nazis. It is something quite different with which we are threatened—the complete collapse of the world of which we are an integral part, and the redistribution and reorganization of that world, politically, economically, financially and spiritually, in such a manner as will menace our institutions, our way of life and our possibility of independent survival.

Readjustments that affect us radically, that will amount, in fact, to a revolution, will be made while we stand helplessly by, unable effectively to protest against or effectively to prevent, waiting to take what we are given—and like it.

The question is not whether we should go to war. It is an idle question, because even if we should at this moment we could not. In spite of the fact that this Blitzkrieg against the whole existing order has been systematically and openly prepared for seven years, it has been the fashion to demur at those who have harped upon it as a prime fact to be considered in the world today and to call them panicky, war mongers and hysterical.

Now, it seems to me, the hysteria is in the other camp. The country is suddenly aware that we are in a planetary crisis and that in a world where only the possession of force can influence events, we are unarmed. At this moment, did not Holland stand at Munich, not by war but by its ability to make it.

There is nothing surprising about what has happened except in so far as it is coming inexorably—yesterday, and the day before yesterday and the day before that—and last spring and the spring before that—and we are the victims of it.

Born in liberty, we have for the first time voices now raised in panic and denunciation of our unpreparedness are precisely the ones who have tried hardest in the past to convince the nation that there was no cause for alarm.

What we need now is not panic, not denunciation, not unconsidered action, but awakening. Analysis and preparation for the future, but for the most likely eventualities. And part of this preparation must begin with a ruthless and unsparring self-criticism.

The balance sheet of our history is mercifully exact. Hitler's armies are battering down frontiers, armies, peoples, institutions and a whole world, because that world has not been able to save itself.

For years it has presented such a spectacle of degeneration and decline as to invite the scorn of the world.

We are threatened from without only because we have become weak within. That weakness is not primarily in lack of arms nor in the nefarious work of Fifth Columns. The latter merely exploit our weakness—as criminals and gangsters were exploiting it long before Fifth Columns were ever dreamed. (And that there was not a self-confessed rapist or murderer but could find some respectable lawyer to plead his case.)

We have been living for a generation on unearned income, with no regard for the liberties which our ancestors won for us in blood; mortgaging our children's patrimony to pay today's bills which are our own.

Born in liberty, we have forgotten the stern fact of liberty—namely, that it involves the highest degree of personal and group responsibility. Freedom means responsibility and responsibility means sacrifice.

When the President said, a week ago Sunday, that we do not need to abandon our democracy to maintain the struggle of aggression, he spoke the truth. We do not need to abandon it, but we do need to go back to it—to go back to its moral and intellectual foundations and build on them again.

Government by agitator-led masses is not American democracy. The concept that there is democracy in the hands of a few is not American democracy. The Congressmen or Senators who are afraid to have a mind of his own and is unwilling to have his political life for his convictions, reading his telegrams and studying the composition of organized groups before he can make up his mind about anything is not a democratic statesman but merely a paid agent, and the agent, further, of the most impulsive and easiest to stampede and most easily misled of all mobs.

Everywhere power has been divorced from responsibility. Our trade unions have power without any sort of responsibility for the productive process or for the community. Many of them are dictator-led at that. Their bosses can strike at will; they own the industry; they demand that close an industry and throw men into the streets; they resort to terror over their own members; they are an anarchy depending upon his politics; and the while he is denounced he is ennobled by the democrats. For unearned income and divorcing responsibility from competence. The same, in other manifestations, holds true for industry, banking and our intellectual life.

Profiteers are decided, in a world where profiteering is the characteristic of the day. If a man, manufacturer or trader, is able to buy out the community in the interest of heavier profits, he is either denounced as a profiteer, or he becomes an arbiter depending upon his politics; and the while he is denounced he is ennobled by the democrats. For unearned income and divorcing responsibility from competence. The same, in other manifestations, holds true for industry, banking and our intellectual life.

Integrity, modesty and every noble passion are held up to ridicule. The independent personality is the butt of every cheap joke. Let a man emerge among us of truly superior quality and a thousand rays will begin shining at his legs to topple him down. If he is a poet, let him

The Minister From France

One has an especially warm welcome for M. Rene Ristelhuber, who comes to us as ambassador from the Republic of France; representative of our gallant comrade in arms, speaking for the people who, with the British, are the gales of civilization against the barbarians. Britain and France are more now than allies. So completely have they joined their strength for the common purpose of the extermination of both depend that for the task in hand they are as one nation. All the resources of both are pooled in the common struggle, the force and resolution of two great, virile races are given to resistance of a powerful and ruthless foe. A quarter-century ago they fought together, the same enemy, and beat him to his knees. What they did once they will do again, and in peace they will lay the foundations of a new and better Europe.

That is the spirit in which Canada receives M. Ristelhuber at an critical a time in our history.—Ottawa Journal.

Why War Savings?

Mr. John Maynard Keynes writes as follows in his book, "How to Pay for the War." Some money must be found to finance the war, saving power from the market; or prices must rise until the available goods are selling at figures which would increase the income of the producers—in other words, the method of inflation." If prices are allowed to rise in an inflationary spiral as would happen if individuals increased their purchases in proportion to the increase in income as a result of the government's war expenditures, the full benefits of the inflation would go to the richer classes, while the poorer would receive real income for the salaries and wages earned.

The result is that the rich bear the burden of the inflation, while the poor are benefited. Mr. Keynes says ironically, "The whole of the real cost of the war, it is claimed, should be borne by the richer classes. May, more, The increased demand for the war would be to the war, offers a much needed opportunity for increasing working-class consumption above what it was previously."

"Do the workers really claim that they alone should be war-profiteers, taking advantage of the war to increase their consumption, and that the whole burden of the war should be borne by others?"

"It is practically impossible for the community as a whole to consume more than it produces. The war effort is to pay for the war, it cannot also supply increased consumption. Those who make the effort have, therefore, only two alternatives between which to choose. They can forego the equivalent consumption altogether (either as a result of taxation or inflation) or they can postpone it, thereby increasing their savings and lending. No expenditure can be adequate which allows the increased purchasing power of the war to be used for anything but saving and lending. Your Baby And Mine

Children who play only with adults are deprived of the conflicts which are inevitable when children are their fierce competitors. They lack also all the joys of sharing their secrets with someone who is of an age to think and feel as they do.

E INGENIOUS

Sometimes children in a neighborhood gang up on one child and make life miserable for him or her. Mother, in such case, has to be ingenious about finding other companions for her child before the situation becomes a serious one.

Mrs. J. R.'s daughter, five years of age, cannot seem to get along with the present neighbor's children. They play with her only when there is no one else. When others are along they get together and all at her and she stands and yells back, but with a dying-call look.

"I have been nice to these children, have taken them to movies and watched them when the mother has gone, though she has never re-

If you can't lure the one child away over and get these two to form a partnership leaving out the other girls, then go out of the neighborhood to find a chum. There is always a friend for every boy or

TWO-PIECE FROCK For Summer Days

No one wants to go through the summer without a practical two-piece frock. Here is a style that you will love for its chic and wearability. Either in printed or plain cotton you will find that this is the dress for all occasions. The flared skirt is easy to make, the short sleeves and interesting pockets are features that are pleasing and attractive. If you make the blouse in both versions you can change about for more variety.

Style No. 3548 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years size 18 requires 3 1/2 yards of fabric

Another "Jean" should go to a girls camp or on a school trip to this summer. She is shy and it will do her good to get away from the family for awhile."

Self-confidence is not built by being put in situations where one feels an outsider.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—We have a nice, comfortable home in a wealthy town, but it is on the wrong side of the tracks. When we built the house we did so because the location was so beautiful and we were anxious to get into the country and didn't realize that this side of the town had a bad name. We have three children who are of school age so we are wondering whether we should sell or rent the place and move to a more desirable location, and we have talked it over until we are blue in the face.

Answer: It is hard to give up a beautiful home that you love, and especially one that you built and where your heart has struck down roots in the ground with every flower and shrub you planted.

But, on the other hand, you have children whose welfare you have to think of first, and environment will play a very important part in not only molding their characters, but also their destinies.

You know the kind of people you want your children to grow up with and to be friends with. You know that your children will take on the manners, the speech, the accent and even the gentility of the children they associate with.

It is hard on parental vanity to face the fact that the children they children play with and go to school with have far more influence on them than they have. But it is true.

So if you don't want your cultured little Percy to say "dix" and "dixie" and use grammar that sets your teeth on edge because some hoodlum who is the school hero does, I am afraid you will have to take him where the background will be better.

THE NORTH POLE IS NOT THE COLDEST PART OF NORTH AMERICA

Our nomination for the "most courageous reporter" goes to a woman in northern Canada who has taken off 80 pounds while cooking and baking in a blizzard of a rugged frontier life.

The reason the North Pole area is not inhabited by white men today is not because of the cold there, but because of the lack of food. The Explorer Stefansson. The coldest temperature known at the North Pole is 60 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit), but this is not as bad as temperatures of 70 below which have been recorded in North Dakota, where many people live. In Siberia, at Verkhnyaya, temperatures of a hundred below zero have been known.

JOIN THE OUTDOOR CROWD: SWIM AND DIVE EXPERTLY

Master Diving in Simple Steps—A simple and easy-to-learn diving-the idea scares her to death. She refuses to believe that she could plunge in merrily instead of entering the water a piece at a time.

Fear of the water may be easily overcome with right instruction and practice. You can swim and dive confidently, win admiration for your skill.

To get used to plunging in the water, do your first dive from a sitting position on the edge of the pool. Brace feet on the trough below, extend arms straight in front, lower head and fall forward and down. As you fall, push with your feet.

Now, you're ready to try a standing position. Extend arms and lean forward, as in diagram. Keeping head well down, push off with feet and, as you enter the water, extend legs fully. When you want to come up, turn head and hands up—that's all.

You can as easily learn to do popular swimming strokes well. Our 42-page booklet, with diagrams and instructions for the dive, American crawl, back stroke, breast stroke, side stroke, trudgeon, freestyle, crawl, breast stroke. Tells how to float, tread water, do casting starts and turns. Includes safety tips.

Send in coin for your copy of "How To Be A Good Swimmer" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, Edmonton, Alberta. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of book.

SPRING BREAKFAST—Now that fresh berries are coming into the market at reasonable prices, they will be a most interesting feature for fruit juices, grapefruit and orange that have been breakfast fare through the winter. Breakfast like this would be sure to start the day profitably. Fresh berries with cream, French toast, jelly, hot corn sausage, assorted rolls, coffee.

DESIGN NO. 253

An embroidered, cover-all gown as dainty, as demure and as welcome as first summer flowers. Whether "home" is a very small flat in a big city or a house with endless rooms set in a beautiful countryside, it is always a more delightful place when mother or sister does a pretty apron and bakes "a batch of cookies" or puts pink icing on a very special cake. You will want them made of delicate organdy, dotted with swiss, chambray and even sturdy unbleached denim.

The pattern contains tissue pattern of apron, transfer for the designs, detail of stitches, color chart, as well as complete instructions for finishing apron.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Our nomination for the "most courageous reporter" goes to a woman in northern Canada who has taken off 80 pounds while cooking and baking in a blizzard of a rugged frontier life.

Not only did she adhere rigidly to her balanced diet, but she gave exercise its due. Part of this was, of course, in the form of outdoor work. Last winter she helped to cut 20 cords of wood! But in addition, she had a set of specific calisthenics which she did every single day, regardless of the hard weather. She has lost 80 pounds and her weight is down to 140 pounds. Only 10 pounds more to go and her weight will be perfect!

Under the most favorable conditions, dieting is no picnic and exercising is not the first choice for recreation. But after hearing how well this slimming program turned out with her, you may be inclined to minimize some of the stumbling blocks in your way. If you really want to slim down, nothing can stop you!

What To Do

Can you give me some suggestions and advice on a 4 p.m. wedding in a hurry? Would white flannels and dark blue double-breasted coats be appropriate for the men when the bride wears white? Does the bride or groom arrange about getting the minister? The groom lives in another state and does not know the minister. What kind of a reception would be appropriate for 50 guests? Thanks very much for your answer.

"SALADA" TEA

Blue double-breasted coats are old standby for summer wedding parties. Generally the engaged couple call on the minister and make arrangements for the ceremony, but inasmuch as the bride has the privilege of selecting the minister and your fiancé is miles away, of course, go right ahead and make the necessary arrangements. Why not suggest in your fiancé that he write to the minister after you have seen him? The reception could take the form of a buffet wedding supper, serving chicken salad, dairy sandwiches, the cream, fancy cakes, wedding cake and

Who is a GAS COMPANY like a RACE HORSE?

... Because

BOTH ARE IN TRAINING A WHOLE YEAR FOR THE BIG EVENT WHEN THEY MUST PERFORM IN FLAWLESS STYLE.

YOUR GAS COMPANY KEEPS IN TRAINING, TOO—constantly checking equipment—replacing pipe lines—adding new devices to make the service even better—connecting new wells—extending our system—all this goes on 12 months of every year so that we will be ready when you want gas in a hurry.

Winter's coldest day is our big Derby—the supreme test—but we will not fail you—we have been in training for it.

OUR SYSTEM OPERATES AT A LOSS FOR NEARLY 5 MONTHS EVERY YEAR; for after all, it costs just as much to read meters no matter how little or how much is used—it takes just as many employees and trucks to keep the system in perfect order even when consumption is at a minimum.

GOOD GAS SERVICE IS NO ACCIDENT—it is the result of careful planning; and the wise co-ordination of millions of dollars' worth of equipment—part of which is held in readiness all year for the peak demands that last but a few hours.

"If you actually BOUGHT this delicious cake... then of course it was wrapped in 'CELLOPHANE'"

I AM so glad to hear you do the same as I do, Ceila, for to tell the truth I buy nearly all my cakes and cookies now. I find it more satisfactory than worrying about them myself. For one thing they're delicious—just as good, if not better, than I can make. And another thing—it's this "Cellophane" wrapping that puts out food now-a-days. I always feel so confident when I see cakes, rolls or biscuits in "Cellophane"—I know they're kept fresh. And here's a tip—save the "Cellophane" used on the baked goods. It's moisture-proof, you know, and you'll find it simply invaluable for wrapping odds and ends in the refrigerator.

HIT-RUN VICTIM NOW IMPROVING REPORT STATES

Condition of Robert Smith, who suffered severe head injuries when knocked from a bicycle by a motor-driven car in the Glenora bridge early Wednesday, was described as slightly improved Thursday morning. Smith had regained consciousness and although his condition is still serious it is not regarded as critical.

In the meantime, city police, assisted by the Glenora bridge, were engaged in an unremitting search for the driver who struck Smith from his wheel and then drove away, leaving the victim bleeding and unconscious on the floor of the bridge.

DEATH SEEN FOR ADOLF HITLER

Take it from Harry Snider, cattle buyer, of 10108 95 street, that Adolf Hitler's personal bliking will come on April 7, 1941.

Snider, who says he has not come forward as a public prophet before, but who claims that many prophecies made privately have come to pass, says that Hitler will die on April 7, 1941, and that three more dictators will have passed from the world by that time.

Through The Mill

"There are strange things done, near the midnight sun—", is the way one of the famed Robert Bruce ballads begins. You might say that the hard of the Arctic is happening over at the breadmill of trouble at the city police station occasionally.

CONTRARY TO MEANING

"The interpretation that is being placed upon this is entirely contrary to the meaning I had in mind and to the words that I used."

"In connection with the relationship of the war to the great problem of the world, I stated that when any speaker of the war was in the line of the war they were minimizing its importance. I look upon the war as greater than that. It is a crisis—a crisis that must be solved if civilization is to continue."

him. He knew Hannah's very well. It was one of those penetrating voices that carry a long way, and when pitched in anger go even further. The other voice was lower, a man's. It took Rosy some while to conclude it was Steve Hog's. "Well, all I got to say, Steve, is you'd better look out for Rosy McAlfee! The first thing you know he's going to find something, and then it's going to be trouble." "Yes, and you'd better be looking out for him, too. How come you got to go back to Lincoln? What's the idea in all that, anyhow?" "I aim to get me an education or bust!" "An education! And what'll you do after you get one, in case you don't bust first?" "Well, one thing certain, I won't marry you, Steve!" "Yes, and another thing certain, if you got went into to get a college education, which I doubt, I wouldn't have you on a Christmas tree, me, my wife's got to be ignored!" "It would take that kind to be fool enough to marry you!" The two men, while Rosy withdrew in the bushes, watching. So, after all, Hannah had been going to see Cousin Steve. It had been important. The hunger for Rosy had gone out of him. But he did have to get back to Lincoln as quickly as possible and he knew he could get a lawyer to tend to this land matter. It was not clear in his mind what would have to be done. Steve could not have his land. Steve could have Hannah, but nothing else.

"Killing him won't help either," Rosy thought, and went on to his home.

A long time before day on Monday morning he was up, had breakfast by lamplight, and rode through an eye down down the valley. The week-end had cheered him. He wanted to get back to college. Yet, when he finally reached the bus station on the main highway, he found Hannah there, too.

"Hello, Hannah," he greeted. The girl blushed. "Heck, me and you have to put up with each other the way down here. Well, it gives me as big a pain as you!" "It couldn't," Rosy said gloomily.

"I'm a mind to slap your ears back for that crack as you said."

"Better get busy, there's the bus!" It was their misfortune to have to take the last two empty seats, and all the way down to Lincoln they stared and gazed at each other, always just ready to take a slash at each other's throat. That trip wore Rosy to the bone. He was never so glad of anything in his life as when the train loomed up, and he saw the bus station at the corner of the campus, and felt the bus slow for the stop.

"I'll take your grip," he said to the girl, with a gesture of chivalry. She accepted. "You wouldn't be caught even seeming to know who I am, would you? I'll have you know I can take my own grip. And now," she added, waiting for him to pass and kicking his grip to the ground.

"You'll get to see your dear brother-in-law Judy! You'll have him here in a few days. But I've got a thing or two to tell you yet, Rosy McAlfee, and you'll burn when you hear it, too!"

Cousin Steve stepped up to meet Rosy. He nodded and grinned at Hannah. He took Rosy aside.

"It's got to be the real deal, away, McAlfee! Something's come up—something mighty important that to men is the biggest thing in your life. Come on over to the gym and I'll tell you all about it."

SENATOR WANTS U. S. SHIPS ENTER CANADIAN PORTS

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Senator Henry Lodge (Rep., Massachusetts) proposed yesterday that neutrality law restrictions be altered to permit United States vessels to enter all Canadian ports and Greenland.

He offered a bill to move the west longitude. Under present restrictions, U.S. ships may enter the Bay of Fundy ports of Yarmouth, N.S., and Saint John, N.B. Lodge said six months' experience had shown that the "exemption of these ports has been entirely beneficial both to Canada and the United States."

"Further consideration of our national defence needs has convinced me that Canada and the United States have many common interests insofar as defence problems in this

"It is my conviction that the whole of North America, plus the Caribbean area, is air base area—our minimum-of-defences. If this is true—and I believe it is—we should extend the privilege of shipping to Canada to include all Canadian ports just as we now extend it to Bay of Fundy ports, Bermuda and the Caribbean islands."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile isn't flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Cartier's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of his flaring freely and make you feel "on an air." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly
A Sad Job
Steady Punch
Never Again

TODAY's column is one which I used to wonder if I would ever have to write. What is more, it is one that I would just as soon not write.

For 20 years the sport columns of The Edmonton Bulletin have recorded the saga of the Grads, game by game, title by title and season by season. My predecessors in the sport department have written many a brilliant chapter in this story and now I have to write "Finito" to it all.

This final chapter could be made a review of the amazing statistics piled up by the Grads as a team and as individuals, but somehow that wouldn't seem fitting. There isn't a single person reading this who doesn't know that the Grads have a record never before equaled or even approached by any organization in this sport. There is nothing to be gained by rehabilitating all the figures again.

The team passed off the sport page last night in a brilliant finale—still world champions, international champions and dominion champions—all a bunch of fine, clean guys who are the idols of thousands of school girls throughout Alberta. The Grads have stepped down off their throne without the slightest blemish or tarnish on their crowns and reputations. To do this after a quarter of a century in championship sport is a mighty feat.

This clean sheet is perhaps the greatest tribute of all to Coach Perry Page. Not only has he shown his girls how to play basketball, but he has shown them the world's first type of sportsmanship and what amateurism really is. If he had to live an example of perfect amateurism, it would be the Grads.

But the most impressive aspect of all so far as I am concerned is the remarkable singleness of purpose, attention to detail and wholehearted enthusiasm that Perry Page has put into the Grads for a quarter of a century. That to my mind is the real secret of the Grads' success, I believe, and Perry has often told me so himself, that there are a lot of coaches who know more basketball than he does, but I don't believe that any of them could stick as dogmatically to one job as he has. He has never wavered in his faith in the right code of sportsmanship and conduct that he started out with no matter how great the temptation to do so.

Steady Punching Pays Off

I KNEW an old prospector once who used to pack around a stone about the size of a five-liter water. Water had worn a hole the size of a dime through the center of the stone.

"Whenever I get sort of dejected," I take a look at that hole and remind myself that it was made by drops of water falling on stone," the old prospector explained. "It just goes to show that if you keep on punching away at your objective long enough you'll get there."

This seems to be the answer to the question of how the Grads did it. Page has never chosen girls simply because they were brilliant athletes. He has always more concerned with whether or not they were the type that would adapt themselves to the Grads' organization and standards. When he had this type of material, he just kept drilling away until they became great players. With a team of great players, he kept punching away toward world honors. The result was the Grads' record and the Grads simply kept on punching and they stayed there.

Success Not Likely

I DON'T think that Edmonton will ever again receive a team comparable to the Grads. We undoubtedly will have teams that will give national and national honors from time to time, but not a machine that can go on to win year after year without missing.

The chief reason that the situation here is no longer likely to produce such a team organization, there are too many other sports and other attractions. I don't believe that Edmonton will ever again turn out 6,000 fans to see a girls' basketball game—any other kind of a basketball game. It was only a case of coincidence to the Grads off the part of the team that kept the girls and made them play "The Grads" and the Grads played a more perfect game than any other girls' basketball team in the world.

And just before closing, here's the answer to what you're wondering about. Last night's attendance of 6,000 was not the largest for the Grads. The biggest was 6,732 at the second game against the Chicago Travelers here, May 4, 1939.

WALTER JOHN SISK'S PITCHING DEFEATS WETASKIWIN

Ponoka Ties For Lead Central Baseball Loop

Believe It Or Not — — By Robt. Ripley

Two Penalty Kick Goals Help Civics Defeat Callie Soccer Team 5 to 0

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin
PONOKA, June 6.—Walter Johnson was in superb form on the mound here Wednesday night and Ponoka's Stampeders bumped Wetaskiwin's Mustangs 5 to 1 in a Central Alberta Baseball League game. The win enabled the locals to move into a first place tie with Edmonton's Arrows.

Johnson held the opposition to four scattered singles and retired 10 batters on strikes, while only losing one walk. An error in the fourth stanza robbed the home twirler of a shut out. Elchuck also pitched good ball for the visitors, just permitting seven singles, but he wavered in two innings to allow two Ponoka runners to score in the initial frame and three in the seventh.

It was the best game played here this season and was witnessed by 250 fans. Kolmatzki, Wetaskiwin first sacker, turned in a sparkling performance, handling 14 chances without a slip and making a fine catch of Cecil Lewis' drive in the fifth to prevent a score. Latiff, Ponoka third baseman, pulled great play when he went into the crowd to gather in Avions' foul in the seventh.

A STRONG wind and rain served to mar the City Soccer League game Wednesday night at Clarke Stadium, which resulted in Civics defeating Callie 5 to 1. This was the second match in the league, Callie having beaten Seona in the opener.

Callie were minus three regular players when Civics fielded their strongest eleven, all of which tend to turn to what promised to be a close struggle into a decisive win for the latter club. Two penalty kick goals by Bob Graham helped in the downfall of the Scots.

GRAHAM SCORES THREE

Upon resuming play with an regular game made good soccer out of question as both teams found it difficult to manipulate the ball. Civics increased their advantage from another free shot, Graham tallying.

NEXT GAME SATURDAY
The fight appeared to leave Callie after their second victory and Civics monopolized the play. John Anderson, Callie's star, who had completed the scoring with a beautiful effort near full time.

The next game will be played Saturday with Civics meeting Seona.
